To Whom It May Concern:

My company has been using Heinzmann windows in our custom homes for the last two years. We are delighted to offer these window/door systems to our clients. With our ICF (insulating concrete form) construction they are a perfect fit to compliment our endeavors to build strong, energy efficient and beautiful homes.

Building on the North Carolina coast line, our clients demand a superior home exterior that can withstand wind, rain and debris in the event of a hurricane. A good window not only provides light, but also has to provide security. In our search for such a window we were introduced to European Windows, who imports the Heinzmann line.

Bernd Wolf, president of European Windows, has always been a pleasure to deal with. He remains in constant contact with his customers, ensuring satisfaction through installation. European Windows delivers excellent advice and service to the homeowner or builder, from ordering the windows, through their production and then shipment to the US from Germany. We remain completely satisfied and have had a positive experience in all of our endeavors with European Windows.

I highly recommend European Windows to anyone who is considering adding the strength, efficiency and beauty of Heinzmann windows to their custom home.

Sincerely,
